Library stock
The Greifswald University Library possesses about 3,1 millions volumes altogether. This stock is located at several places: Central University Library (Felix-Hausdorff-Str.), Old Library (Rubenowstr. 4), Departmental Library (Ernst-Lohmeyer-Platz 4), Library Archive (Am Schießwall) and some smaller locations in Greifswald.
In the Central University Library about 300,000 books and journals are situated in the open access area and can be used without ordering them before.

At the ground floor you can find general literature and the textbook collection ("Lehrbuchsammlung") which offers several copies of the basic literature for studies of law, economics and natural sciences. German and foreign newspapers are laid out in a newspaper reading area. Further you can find the literature of law and economics on the first floor, the literature of the natural sciences on the second floor and the literature of biology and medicine on the third floor. Journals are standing on the same floor like books of the same subject.

The closed stacks which are located in the basement of the building contain about 700,000 volumes. You have to order these before using or lending them out.

In the Old Library you can find the special collections "Old Books" (that means our stock before 1850) and "Pomeranica" (that means literature about the region Pommern). The special collections are non-lending collections which can only be lent out to the reading room of the Old Library or belong to the reference stacks in this reading room. The literature of arts and music are also available in the Old Library.

In the Departmental Library are literature of humanities and theology, including the textbook collection for these departments. The books are shelved in open stacks and mostly for loan.

If you have any questions you can …

… ask a reference librarian: At the ground floor of the Central Library is a service desk. The members of the staff like to help you there. Or you can telephone: (03834) 4201515.

… take away our information sheets which are laid out in the University Library.

… look at our homepage or you can send an e-mail to us: ubinfo@uni-greifswald.de.

The University Library via internet

You can get further informations about the University Library by looking at our homepage: https://ub.uni-greifswald.de/en/, for example „Library“ (institutions/opening hours), „Service“ (Services, A-Z), „Search“). At our homepage you can also use our and many other databases.

Catalogues

The books, journals and other media of the University Library are listed in the following catalogues:

Online catalogue OPAC

(abbreviation for online public access catalogue). This is the online catalogue which lists the all newer (as well as the oldest) books of the University Library and all journals. The older stocks (up to 1989) are listed here only to a smaller amount (see Elektronischer Zettelkatalog for further listing). The OPAC allows electronical ordering. (You can get further information about this in our information sheets „Recherche im Online-Katalog OPAC“ and „Bestellen, Vormerken, Verlängern im OPAC:“)

Besides you can view your user account in the OPAC: There you can manage your account (for example renewing your loans).

Elektronischer Zettelkatalog (electronic card catalogue)

You can search this catalogue via internet. It lists those stocks which are not yet machine-readable (up to 1989). This catalogue allows also electronical ordering. (You can get further informations about this in our information sheets „Recherche im Elektronischen Zettelkatalog“ and „Bestellen im Elektronischen Zettelkatalog:“)

Lending of books

You have to achieve a library card of the University Library for being able to order and lend out. You can get the library card only at the service desk of the Central Library. Students of the university can use the electronic Student ID card. It has a barcode and the library card number on the back.

Most of the books in the Central Library can be lent out after you have taken them from the shelves by yourself in the open access area.

Journals and reference books can not be lent out. Please mind that the stocks of the Old Library and parts of the law and economic literature in the Central Library are also non-lending collections. You can use them only locally.

Working desks in the University Library

The Central Library offers altogether 747 working desks. All these desks have data connections so you can work with your own laptop. There are about 60 computers which can be used for research or study. Only students and the staff of Greifswald University are allowed to use a free internet access. Additional the Central Library has 24 carrels (working cabins) for single-user and 4 carrels for groups.

20 further working desks are located in the reading room of the Old Library, Rubenowstr. 4, where you can work with reference material and with the special collections of „Old Books“ and of „Pomeranica“ (stocks standing in the closed stacks have to be ordered). As well you can use a reader-printer (for microforms), a scanner and 2 computers for searching the catalogues there.

The Divisional Library has 256 working places, copiers and scanners to use for students and other users. There are also carrels for single-users and groups.

Cloak-room

All departments of the library have lockers for your clothes and bags. You have to bring along your own lock to close the locker. (It is not allowed to enter the reading areas with your coats, bags or rucksacks.) There are locks with deposit you can loan at the service desk. Please empty the lockers before leaving the library. Otherwise we open them on the next day and you have to pay a charge.

How can you find us?

A site plan on the rear page of this leaflet shows you the location. The main-entrance of the Central Library (Felix-Hausdorff-Str.) is accessible from the Berthold-Beitz-Platz (a square which is on the footway and cycle track from the town centre). There are only very few parking spaces near the building.
